IX. Insolvency

Insolvency Model Law (1997): a regulation model for international insolvency cases.

Frieswick, K. Going bust not the same all over: filing for bankruptcy protection means different things in different countries: will a uniform code ever be adopted? CFO: the magazine for senior financial executives (New York) 18:7:73, 22 July 2002.

Halliday, T.C. Legitimacy, technology, and leverage: the building blocks of insolvency architecture in the decade past and the decade ahead. Brooklyn journal of international law (Brooklyn, N.Y.) 32:3:1081-1102, 2006. Also available online at http://www.brooklaw.edu/~media/PDF/LawJournals/BJI_PDF/bji_vol32iii.xhtml insolvencies, including a Draft Cross-Border Insolvency Concordat / M. Sigal and others.

Morrison, R. Avoiding inherent uncertainties in cross-border insolvency: is the UNCITRAL Model Law the answer? Queensland University of technology law journal (Queensland, Australia) 15:103-125, 1999.

Murphy, P.J. Why won’t the leaders lead?: the need for national governments to replace academics and practitioners in the effort to reform the muddled world of international insolvency. University of Miami inter-American law review (Coral Gables, Fla.) 34:1:121-153, 2002.

Spanish. Translation of title: Model law and provisions as instruments of international harmonization and unification of insolvency law.

Schlosser, P. Recent developments in transit-border insolvency. Roma, Centro di Studi e Richerche di Diritto Comparato e Straniero, 1999. 29 p. (Saggi, conferenze e seminari, Centro di studi e ricerche di diritto comparato e straniero; 35).

